WICHE

Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education

The Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education - WICHE - is a public, interstate agency established to promote and to facilitate resource sharing, collaboration, and cooperative planning among the western states and their colleges and universities. Member and affiliated states are:

Alaska	New Mexico
Arizona	North Dakota
California	Oregon
Colorado	South Dakota
Hawaii	Utah
Idaho	Washington
Montana	Wyoming
Nevada

WICHE's broad objectives are to:

- Strengthen educational opportunities for students through expanded access to programs;
- Assist policy makers in dealing with higher education and human resource issues through research and analysis;
- Foster cooperative planning, especially that which targets the sharing of resources.

WICHE's Information Clearinghouse serves as the primary focus for research and policy analysis on vital issues in higher education.

INTRODUCTION

This report of tuition and fees is the tenth in an annual series published by the WICHE Information Clearinghouse. The report contains tabular presentations of tuition and fee charges for full-time, full-year attendance at public institutions in 15 western states.

This year tuition and fees for resident out-of-district and nonresident students at two-year institutions have been added. Averages for these categories are included in the regional averages (Tables A and B) beginning in 1988-89. Charges are reported for the following categories:

1. resident in-district/county students at two-year institutions
2. resident out-of-district/county students at two-year institutions
3. nonresident students at two-year institutions
4. resident undergraduate students at four-year institutions
5. nonresident undergraduate students at four-year institutions
6. resident graduate students
7. nonresident graduate students

For each of the seven categories, student charges are reported for the current and prior academic years (1989-90 and 1988-89) and for 1985-86, in order to show the percent change in these charges over one-year and five-year periods. Separate tables present arithmetic averages for specific groups of institutions and states. Percent changes in these averages from previous years are also provided.

Uniform definitions are used in collecting data from the states. Tuition is defined as the total dollar amount paid by a full-time student for a full academic year - two semesters, three quarters, or two trimesters. Required fees are defined as the total fees that a majority of full-time students pay in addition to tuition.

Several states charge tuition for nonresident (or out-of-state) students only, while resident (or in-state) students pay only educational or instructional fees. The definitions and terminology vary in different states. For consistency, the instructional fees are included as tuition and required fees. Also included are other incidental fees, many of which are used to support various student services. For resident students at two-year institutions in California, only the uniform state fee is reported. Based on these definitions, this report provides reasonably comparable figures for the average costs faced by full-time students.

Whenever necessary, any errors identified in the data for previous years have been corrected. For an overview of state policies for determining tuition charges and student residency requirements see Appendix A of the 1986-87 report on Tuition and Fees in Public Higher Education in the West.

HIGHLIGHTS

Tuition and fee charges for students at public institutions in the West continued to increase in 1989-90. In terms of regional averages, these increases varied from 4.6 percent for nonresident students at two-year institutions to 15.4 percent for nonresident graduate students.

For resident in-district students at two-year institutions, the full-time tuition and fee charges average $729 in 1989-90, a 6.4 percent increase over the previous year, and $793 for resident out-of-district students at two-year institutions, a 7.0 percent increase. For nonresident students at two-year institutions, the tuition and fee charges average $2,876, a 4.6 percent increase over the previous year.

For resident students at public four-year institutions in the West, undergraduate tuition and fees average $1,382 in 1989-90 and graduate tuition and fees average $1,596. This is a 7.8 percent increase for undergraduate students over the previous year and a 9.8 percent increase for graduate students.

Nonresident undergraduate and graduate students at public institutions in the West pay substantially higher tuition and fee charges in 1989-90. For nonresident undergraduate students the average charge is 13.3 percent greater than in 1988-89 and for nonresident graduate students the average increase is 15.4 percent. The average tuition and fees for nonresident undergraduates is $4,920 and for nonresident graduate students it is $5,271.

Table A summarizes the average charges for full-time students in each of these categories for the years 1980-81 through 1989-90, using data reported in the following institutional tables and in previous years' reports. Table B indicates the yearly percentage changes in average tuition and fee charges since 1980-81.

The data for 1989-90 indicate a continuing pattern of increases in student tuition and fee charges that exceeds the level of general price increases. The sharp increase in nonresident tuition and fees is approximately three times the 5.0 percent increase in the Consumer Price Index for the 12 months ending July 1989.

[1] The University of Alaska System has gone through a restructuring process. All community colleges, except for Prince William Sound Community College, have been consolidated into the University of Alaska system. Tuition and fees for these institutions are included in the tables for four-year undergraduate institutions.

[2] California initiated a $100 required fee in 1984-85 ($50 per semester) for students taking more than six credit units. In 1987 this was changed to $5.00 per unit up to a maximum of $50.00 per semester and extended through 1992. Individual community colleges or districts may charge additional incidental fees. No tuition as such is charged.

[3] Luna and Tucumcari Area Schools do not charge tuition. Albuquerque Vocational-Technical Institute charges tuition for academic programs only. There are no tuition charges for vocational programs at these three institutions, all students pay a $10 fee per semester.

[4] Lower tuition rate in 1989-90 reflects the reduction or elimination of certain fees.

[1] The University of Alaska System has gone through a restructuring process. All community colleges, except for Prince William Sound Community College, have been consolidated into the University of Alaska system. Tuition and fees for these institutions are included in the tables for four-year undergraduate institutions.

[2] Name changed from Coachella Valley.

[3] Las Positas is scheduled to open in 1990. Las Positas is part of the South County community college district. Tuition and fees reported for 1988-89 and 1989-90 reflect the rates which apply to all institutions in that district.

[1] The University of Alaska has restructured into four institutions: three multi-campus institutions, and one community college. At the multi-campus institutions the (per credit hour) tuition rate for undergraduate courses for Alaska residents is $7 less at the rural campuses than at the urban campuses. Without taking required fees into account, annualized full-time tuition for resident undergraduate students enrolled at urban campuses is $1,092, and $910 at rural campuses. This "flat rate" is based on a new consolidated rate for 13 credit hours (changed from 12 hours in FY 1989). All other differences among campuses is a reflection of variations in required fees.

[2] Higher rates apply to certain fields.

[3] Upper division undergraduate students pay a higher tuition rate.

[4] Tuition and fees for upper division undergraduates are reported; lower division undergraduate tuition rates are the same as those for the community colleges.

[5] Lower rate in 1989-90 reflects reduction or elimination of certain fees.

[6] Montana has restructured its tuition schedule. Students taking a "minimum" full-time course load of 12 to 13 credit hours pay lower tuition than students taking a "typical" full-time load of 14 to 18 credit hours. Tuition for a "typical" full-time load of 14 to 18 credit hours is reported here.

[7] Name changed from college to university effective July 1, 1989.

[1] The University of Alaska has restructured into four institutions: three of multi-campus institutions, and one community college. At the multi-campus institutions the (per credit hour) tuition rate for undergraduate courses for Alaska residents is $7 less at the rural campuses than at the urban campuses. Without taking required fees into account, annualized full-time tuition for resident undergraduate students enrolled at urban campuses is $1,092, and $910 at rural campuses. This "flat rate" is based on a new consolidated rate for 13 credit hours (changed from 12 hours in FY 1989). All other differences among campuses is a reflection of variations in required fees.

[2] Higher rates apply to certain fields.

[3] Upper division undergraduate students pay a higher tuition rate.

[4] Tuition and fees for upper division undergraduates are reported; lower division undergraduate tuition rates are the same as those for the community colleges.

[5] Lower rate in 1989-90 reflects reduction or elimination of certain fees.

[6] Montana has restructured its tuition schedule. Students taking a "minimum" full-time course load of 12 to 13 credit hours pay lower rates than students taking a "typical" full-time load of 14 to 18 credit hours. Tuition for a "typical" full-time load of 14 to 18 credit hours is reported here.

[7] Name changed from college to university effective July 1, 1989.

[8] Nonresident tuition at Dakota State University was reduced effective the second semester of 1988-89.

[1] Western State College of Colorado no longer offers master's degree programs.

[2] Higher rates apply to certain fields.

[3] Amounts reported are for 15 credit hours based on a per-credit-hour rate. Normal "full-time" graduate course load at Colorado Springs is nine credit hours.

[4] Lower rate for 1989-90 reflects reduction or elimination of certain fees.

[5] Montana has restructured its tuition schedule. Graduate students taking a "minimum" full-time course load of nine credit hours pay lower tuition than students taking a "typical" full-time load of 12 credit hours. Tuition for a "typical" full-time load of 12 credit hours is reported.

[6] Name changed from college to university effective July 1, 1989.
